

Volunteer with REACH Beyond Domestic Violence

REACH is committed to ending domestic and dating violence by providing prevention, intervention and advocacy services in MetroWest Boston. For over 35 years, REACH has been a central support in the community, providing education and training on dating and domestic violence; supporting survivors with crisis intervention through our 24-hour hotline and shelter, community-based support, support groups, legal advocacy program, and child and teen services.

Volunteering with REACH is a rewarding and enriching experience. Our goal at REACH is to meet the needs of survivors in the MetroWest region through staff and volunteer service. We offer challenging opportunities for volunteers to grow and become part of the movement to end domestic violence. Without our dedicated volunteers, REACH would not be able to do all of the work we do. In one year, we serve over 7,000 individuals and answer around 2,000 hotline calls. Volunteers contribute over 5,000 hours to these efforts.

Please take some time to read through our volunteer job descriptions. Note that all volunteer positions require an orientation to REACH and domestic violence. For direct service roles, we ask that volunteers attend one of our full trainings. Our full training varies in length, but is approximately 35 hours. We ask that all volunteers attend training for multiple reasons, but most importantly so that you will have the tools you need should someone in the community ever REACH out to you for support. Non-direct service roles require shorter trainings, depending upon roles. After training, all volunteers will be supported by a staff member familiar with their program. We believe that everyone has the ability to help make our communities into safer places.

We look forward to hearing from you and working with you in the future.

- Hours: Hours for this position vary, and may include daytime, evening, or weekends.

What you can do right now

There are many things you can do today to support this work:

Organize a donation drive

We always have an ongoing need for certain shelter supplies and other items, and we also run seasonal donation drives for paper goods, toiletries, household goods and Holiday Gifts. Organize your group of friends, school community, religious group, or your office to help us fill an important need or to do something special for a family.

For more information on how to organize a donation drive, please contact Courtney Meyer at courtney@reachma.org.

Host a house party to introduce new people to REACH

With help from REACH, you can put together an event that will help us raise awareness and bring in new supporters. Invite friends, neighbors, and coworkers to your home (or the home of a generous friend) and we can make a presentation about the work we do and a featured speaker. House parties are vital to expanding our outreach and increasing our support.

For more information on hosting a house party, please contact Brianna Nadelberg at brianna@reachma.org.

Donate

Without individual contributions, we would not be able to continue providing excellent services to thousands of people affected by domestic violence. Your support can help pay for those services, or you can make a donation to our Independence Fund which helps cover costs of education, security deposits, car repair and more for families in need. We also have an e-mail list we use exclusively for times when we need specific furniture or household items for a survivor who is either moving into shelter or moving out on their own.

To join this list, please contact Courtney Meyer at courtney@reachma.org.
