Guests include adults and children, and the number of children among the eight families can vary significantly. The shelter is staffed by full time advocates, full and part time milieu staff and many volunteers. All staff work from REACH's core values as described on our website, <https://reachma.org/who-we-are/>.

The Residential Counselor spends time engaging with survivors (adults and children) living at the shelter and supervising assorted shelter activities such as psycho educational support groups, mind/body groups for adults, and after school activities for children.
