What is the Community Impact Partnership Program?

Partnering with REACH builds safety, inspires hope, and creates lasting change in the communities your team, customers, and families work, live, and play.

REACH Beyond Domestic Violence invites businesses, corporations, foundations, civic organizations, and community partners to join us in building communities where everyone can live with safety, dignity, and hope. As a partner, your company or organization becomes part of a movement that not only responds to domestic violence, but helps transform the conditions that allow violence to exist.

A partnership with REACH is more than sponsorship of a single moment. It is an investment in survivors, families, healthy relationships, and stronger communities.

Our Community Impact Partnership Program is the perfect way to pledge your long-term commitment to REACH's mission and provides organizations with one flexible way to support REACH throughout the year. Partners may choose to invest in REACH's year-round work, support a signature event or campaign, or create a combination partnership that reflects their philanthropic, community engagement, and employee involvement goals.

Your support helps ensure survivors and families have access to safety, healing, advocacy, housing support, children's services, and hope, while also helping REACH build safer communities across the 27 cities and towns we serve.

About REACH

For more than 45 years, REACH Beyond Domestic Violence has stood alongside survivors, families, and communities, responding to domestic violence with compassion, courage, and resolve.

Founded in 1981 as the Waltham Battered Women's Support Committee, REACH began as an all-volunteer shelter and hotline created to fill a critical gap in services for survivors of abuse. Over four decades later, REACH has evolved into a dynamic, multiservice, trauma-informed organization serving 27 communities north and west of Boston and reaching more than 7,000 individuals annually.

Today, REACH provides a full continuum of survivor-centered services including:

- 24/7 crisis support
- Emergency shelter
- Community advocacy & safety planning
- Housing support & stabilization
- Children's services
- Clinical support groups
- Prevention education
- Community engagement & outreach
- Economic empowerment
- Healing & recovery opportunities
- Systems advocacy

Every service we provide is grounded in survivor voice, dignity, self-determination, and our unwavering commitment to providing safety and compassionate care.

Our Mission

REACH Beyond Domestic Violence empowers individuals, families, and communities to overcome domestic violence and increase healthy relationships. We center the voices of survivors in all that we do, ensuring that our work is grounded in their resilience, insight, and leadership.

Through comprehensive support services, innovative prevention and education programs, and policy advocacy, we break the cycle of abuse and promote lasting change. Our work is rooted in equity and the unwavering belief that everyone deserves to live free from fear and violence.

Our Vision and Values

REACH envisions a world where individuals and communities are free from domestic violence and empowered to live with safety, dignity, and hope.

We believe ending domestic violence requires more than responding to harm, it requires transforming the conditions that allow violence to exist. Guided by inclusion, unity, solidarity, trust, and change, we center diverse voices, build equitable relationships, challenge harmful norms and systems, and work alongside survivors and our communities toward lasting change.

Why Your Partnership Matters

Your investment helps create both immediate safety and long-term community transformation.

Domestic violence impacts every community, workplace, school, and neighborhood. Survivors often face barriers related to housing stability, financial security, employment, healthcare, legal systems, child well-being, and community support.

Strategic Priorities Supported By Your Investment

Your investment allows REACH to advance the following strategic priorities:

- Strengthening survivor-centered advocacy and safety planning
- Expanding housing stability and economic empowerment supports
- Sustaining emergency shelter and crisis response services
- Supporting children and families impacted by domestic violence
- Growing prevention education and healthy relationship programming
- Building community partnerships that interrupt violence and promote safety
- Advancing equity, dignity, and access across all areas of service

When your organization partners with REACH, you are investing in survivor safety today and helping create the conditions for lasting change tomorrow.

Survivor Client Testimonials

"I came to REACH because I was ready to start healing. I am so thankful they answered my call that day. I was still terrified, but my advocate's calmness and reassurance helped me realize I was in a safe space, and that she would do anything she could to help me. I felt I had a friend, someone who finally got it. I felt seen and heard by her."

"Not only has REACH given me support, it has helped me find my voice as a survivor. To find empowerment through advocating for better laws. So, families who come after mine don't have to battle to retain their freedom."

"When I found REACH, I found another level of support beyond my family and friends. It wasn't just helping with court paperwork or navigating systems. It was someone sitting beside me in court when my hands were shaking. It was someone reminding me how strong I am and how much I've already overcome. And it was the sisterhood I found through REACH — women who lifted me up and helped me feel empowered again."

Create a Partnership That Works for Your Organization

The strongest partnerships begin with conversation.

Whether your organization is interested in community investment, employee engagement, signature events, a specific area of REACH's work, or a multi-year commitment, our Development Team would be happy to build an opportunity around your priorities.

Recognition is always subject to partner preference. Organizations may choose public recognition, limited recognition, or anonymous giving.

Event-related benefits and recognition are subject to event timelines, production deadlines, venue capacity, availability, and mission appropriateness.

Your Partnership Grows With You

We want partnering with REACH to be simple.

Qualifying corporate contributions made throughout the partnership year count toward your organization's annual partnership level.

If your cumulative support reaches a higher partnership level during the year, REACH will recognize your organization at that higher level for the remainder of the partnership period, subject to event deadlines and availability.

That means you don't have to choose between supporting REACH throughout the year and sponsoring an event. It all adds up to one partnership, and one shared commitment to safer communities.

Choose the Partnership That's Right for You.

One partnership. Many ways to make an impact.

Every organization approaches community investment differently. REACH will work with you to build a partnership that reflects your priorities.

Deepen Your Impact: Multi-Year Partnerships

Lasting change takes time. Multi-year partnerships give REACH the stability to plan ahead, respond to the evolving needs of survivors and families, and invest in the long-term work of preventing domestic violence and building healthy relationships.

For our corporate and community partners, a multi-year commitment also creates an opportunity to build a deeper relationship with REACH, one that can evolve alongside your organization's community investment, employee engagement, and philanthropic priorities.

Partners making annual investments of $15,000 or more may choose to make a multi-year commitment, with customized partnership opportunities available at $25,000+ annually.

One Commitment. Greater Impact.

A multi-year partnership can provide:

- Greater, sustained community impact by providing REACH with reliable resources to support survivors and advance prevention year after year.
- Simplified annual planning through one partnership commitment that can encompass year-round impact, signature events, employee engagement, or a combination.
- Priority partnership planning with REACH to identify the programs, events, and engagement opportunities that best align with your organization's goals.
- Consistent recognition as a leading partner in REACH's work to create safer communities.
- Meaningful impact updates that help your organization understand and share what its investment is helping make possible.
- Flexibility over time to determine how your partnership comes to life each year as your priorities and REACH's needs evolve.

How We Work

Our Guiding Principles

Survivor and Person-Centered Practices

We center dignity, safety, and self-determination in every decision. Survivors inform program design, evaluation, and continuous improvement. Our approach is trauma-informed, culturally responsive, and grounded in trust, respect, and resilience.

Equity as a Living Practice

We actively identify and dismantle structural barriers that disproportionately impact marginalized communities. Justice is pursued through direct advocacy and systems change.

Collective Influence and Accountable Collaboration

We strengthen outcomes through collaboration, shared leadership, and transparent communication. Together, we maximize collective impact.

Agile and Future-Forward Evolution

We use data, lived experience, and continuous learning to remain responsive to changing needs and emerging opportunities.

Purposeful Stewardship and Sustainable Restoration

We use resources wisely, invest thoughtfully, and define success by both impact and how we show up for our community.

Our One Big Audacious Goal

To build communities where survivors of domestic violence are believed, supported, and live free from harm, while advancing collective system changes so violence is no longer tolerated or ignored.

Everything we do moves us toward this shared outcome.
